

POLICEMAN SAVES 7 IN EARLY MORNING BREWERY PARK FIRE

Consumers' Cafe Employees
Were Sleeping When Cop
Discovered the Blaze.

Policeman Joseph Carberry warned seven persons of a fire underneath them by throwing stones against their windows at the Consumers' Park Cafe and Restaurant, No. 927 Underhill Avenue, Brooklyn, at 3 A. M. today.

Mrs. Fred Winters, manager, and Miss Helen Earhart, assistant, were asleep in one room on the upper floor of the big two-story frame pavilion-like building, which is near Elberta Field. In other rooms were fu-luis Wendriner, August Heibow, Paul Roseman, Peter Duder and Carl Anderson, employees.

All wanted to jump when they reached the windows, but the policeman persuaded them to wait for firemen with ladders. He assisted the two women over a shed to the ground. The fire, which started from the cellar through the building by a high wind, doing $25,000 damage.

An American flag floated over the blaze, though the staff was scorched. A soldier wanted to climb the pole and save it, but firemen decided it was too dangerous, and saved the flag themselves by playing water on it.

STANDARD OIL SAFE BLOWN.

$25,000 Stolen From Office of the Harlem Depot.

A safe in the office of the Standard Oil Company's Harlem depot at the foot of East 125th Street, was blown open early yesterday. It became known to-day, and $25,000 was stolen. The office was undisturbed when the night watchman left at 1 A. M. At 7, when the day watchman came on, he found the outer and inner doors of the safe on the floor, with powder, fuses, tools and gloves scattered about.

From a small safe in the office which had been left unlocked, $75 was taken. Detectives arrested Timothy Hogan, No. 515 East 43d Street. He denied any knowledge of the affair.

Little Miss "Private" Latham Gets Silver Spoon From Mascot

FRANCIS LATHAM

"Company, halt!"

"Right, face!"

"Miss Private Frances Latham, two paces to the front, march!"

"Attention to orders!"

Headquarters of Official Mascot, 300th U. S. Infantry, Saugerties, N. Y.

You are hereby presented with a sterling silver spoon as a token of comradeship with the 300th U. S. Infantry, A. K. A. "The Fighting Irish."

"Capt. HAROLD W. HOLCACHER, Official Mascot, 300th U. S. Infantry."

And so "Corpl." Harold W. Holcacher of Saugerties, N. Y., six years old, Official Mascot of the 300th U. S. Infantry, Company G, erstwhile juvenile actor of the Famous Players, and who achieved fame for his work during the Third Liberty Loan, presents through The Evening World a silver spoon to Miss "Private" Frances Latham of No. 329 West 28th Street.

Little Miss "Private" Latham is the two months' old daughter of Private Harry Latham, who is now in France with his regiment, the 359th U. S. Infantry. She has never seen her soldier Daddy, and her mother writes that she is anxiously awaiting his return.

An Evening World reporter who made the presentation for the "Corporal" was informed by the little private that the spoon would always remain among her most cherished possessions. Of course she will use it when she learns the gentle art of eating. She was still gurgling her thanks when the reporter left.

ARMED ROBBERS ON CAR FLEE AS SOLDIERS APPEAR

Six Men in Uniform Prevent Holdup of Jersey Trolley
—Highwaymen Escape.

An attempted trolley car holdup on the Bergen-Hackensack line at 123 this morning, was frustrated when six soldier-passengers dashed from the car to attack two armed robbers who had covered the motorman and conductor with their revolver.

The trolley, coming from Hackensack, had reached the switch near the foot of Oak Street when Motorman Daniel Treat noticed two men standing on the tracks. He was forced to bring his car to a stop before passing the switch. When Conductor Louis ran to the front of the car to turn the switch, one of the men drew a revolver and ordered him to put up his hands. The other man covered the motorman, telling him to get off the car.

The soldiers, realizing something was wrong, left the car by the rear door and ran to the front. At sight of the soldiers the robbers fled, the army men in pursuit. The chase led up Oak Street and through other streets of the outlying district but the men escaped.

NEW ANAESTHETIC FOUND BY JOHNS HOPKINS EXPERT

Dr. Macht Discovers Benzyl Alcohol Forty Times Less Toxic Than Cocaine.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 17.—Dr. David I. Macht, of the pharmacological department of Johns Hopkins University, has discovered a new local anesthetic that is about forty times less toxic than cocaine.

The drug itself—benzyl alcohol or phenethylalcohol—is not new but its properties in producing local anesthesia are in the nature of a complete discovery.

Dr. Macht happened to taste a minute particle of the benzyl alcohol and found his tongue completely anesthetized. There was a slight irritability and this was followed, he said, by a sensation of numbness.

A series of careful experiments followed, and after the benzyl alcohol had been tried out successfully in case after case on dumb animals, it was tried successfully in the clinic.
